Bylaw inches toward approval

The comprehensive zoning bylaw of the municipality of Anson, Hindon and Minden moved one step closer to being passed by council at a public meeting on Wednesday.

The meeting attended by nearly fifty people, was the third open house held at the municipal office to provide information to the public on the zoning bylaw. In contrast to the meeting held on October 17, criticism of the bylaw and council's method of introducing the document to the public, was limited and was balanced by praise for council's response to previous objections.

After the doors to the council chambers were opened, shortly after 7 p.m., ratepayers were given an opportunity to examine the maps displayed on the walls and were able to discuss the zoning designations with members of council, the municipal planner Bob Lehman and clerk-treasurer Bev Millar.

At 8 p.m. Deputy Reeve Ed Pergolas, acting as chairman, called the meeting to order and informed the gathering the bylaw will not be passed until all concerns are examined by council and the planner. Pergolas said that six specific concerns had been presented at the meeting on October 17 and that council had resolved each objection.

He noted that two additional concerns had been brought up during the meeting that evening.

To clear up some confusion between the bylaw and the Official Plan, Bob Lehman explained that the official plan outlines the municipality's long term goals for land use over the next ten to fifteen years, whereas the comprehensive zoning bylaw is more detailed and specific and outlines limitations on lot sizes, set backs, minimum frontages, the size of dwellings and so on.

He emphasised the zoning bylaw must conform to the official plan which was approved by the Ministry of Municipal Affairs and Housing earlier this year. The proposed zoning bylaw will replace the law which has been in effect since 1967.

Legions mark day of remembrance

This coming weekend services will be held throughout the Highlands honouring those soldiers who died during the two World Wars and the Korean Conflict. The public is encouraged to attend these ceremonies all organized by various branches of the Royal Canadian Legion.

On Sunday, November 10, a Remembrance Day service will be held at the County Cairn in Minden, next to the Library/Cultural Centre. Marchers will form up at the arena at 1:45 p.m. for the parade to the cairn for a service at 2 p.m. Following the service, participants are invited to return to the Community Centre for refreshments. The service is being co-ordinated by Haliburton Branch 129.

The Haliburton Branch will also be holding a service

Monday November 11. Participants are asked to gather at the Legion Hall in Haliburton by 10:30 a.m. for the march to the cenotaph where the service will be held at 11 a.m. Following the ceremonies, a reception and fellowship period will be held at the Legion Hall.

Remembrance Day services in Kinmount will be held on Sunday, November 10 under the auspices of Branch 441. The parade will form up at the Legion Hall at 10:30 a.m. for the march to the community cenotaph and service at 11 a.m. Following the ceremonies, the parade will then march to the Roman Catholic Church in Kinmount for a Remembrance Day Service. A luncheon and refreshments will follow at the Kinmount Legion Hall.

Branch 624 in Wilberforce will be holding their Remembrance Day services on November 11. Marchers are asked to gather at the Firehall by 10:30 a.m. for the parade to the cenotaph and the services. A luncheon will be served at the Legion Hall following the ceremonies.

While poppies have been on sale all week at various retail outlets throughout the Highlands, Saturday, November 9, has been designated as Poppy Day for the three Legion branches. Members of the Legions and the Ladies Auxiliaries will be selling poppies that day. The floral emblem is both a remembrance of those who gave their lives for this country and a way of raising money for those veterans and others who need financial assistance.

Funny faces were everywhere last Thursday at Archie Stouffer Elementary School. Most classes in the school marked the Hallowe'en celebration with a costume party. Some of the humorous faces stalking the halls of the school are captured in the photo above.

Dysart voters quiz candidates

"I am glad to see so many people here tonight. Someone said that Dysart was stagnant. This is a sign that we aren't."

With those comments,

Dysart et al Reeve Murray Fearrey opened the all-candidates meeting at the Haliburton Legion attended by over 80 people. Fearrey who was acclaimed to the post of Reeve for another term, acted as the master of ceremonies and kept the meeting moving quickly.

Seated onstage were the 18 candidates for Municipal Council and the Board of Education.

Each candidate, including the members of council who have been acclaimed, were allowed five minutes to address the audience then, after an intermission, a question and answer period was held.

The eight candidates for the five positions on the board of education spoke first, in alphabetical order.

Wanda Byers said that as a mother of two high school students, and through her involvement in Brownies, minor hockey and the figure skating club, she is very aware of the concerns of young people.

She promised if elected to ensure the special education programs are updated and improved, to maintain a uniform standard of education for all students in the county, to encourage rapport between the board, teachers and students and to endeavour to keep the standard of education as high as possible.

Lynn Craigmyle, manager of three Bowes and Cocks offices in Haliburton county since 1972, has served as trustee since being appointed by the board after Doctor Blair Pierce resigned.

He told the audience he is proud to have shared in the accomplishments of the board over the past term including the appointment of the director of education, the principal of HHSS and the hiring of the curriculum co-ordinator.

His experience on the board has shown that no one person can dominate and that the majority rules, often after lively discussions, he commented.

Child dies in accident

The county was saddened to learn of the death of an eight year old child in a single car accident Saturday afternoon.

Dead is Laura Rowden, daughter of Keith and Deborah Rowden of Stanhope Township. She was a passenger in a 1985 model pick-up truck driven by Rita Barry, 25, of Stanhope Township.

According to the police, Rita Barry was eastbound on Highway 118 near West Guilford when she lost control of the truck. The vehicle swerved from one shoulder to the other before sliding into the right ditch where it struck a rock cut and rolled over.

Laura Rowden was a passenger in the right hand side of the cab. She sustained severe head injuries as a result of the impact. She was pronounced dead on arrival at the Haliburton Hospital.

A second passenger in the truck, three year old Jeremy Barry, and the driver sustained minor injuries in the mishap.

Damage to the vehicle, which police describe as being destroyed, was estimated at $14,000.

The investigating officer was Constable Joe Dorri-cott. No decision has been made on whether an inquest will be held.

Advance poll attracts 218 in Minden

Last Saturday's advance poll for the upcoming municipal election drew 218 voters to the Anson, Hindon and Minden polling station. The number of voters was down somewhat from last year, but still represented one of the highest voter turn-outs in the area.

The Cardiff Township advance poll drew almost 100 more voters than the Minden station, with 308 ballots being cast. The advance poll for the northern Victoria County municipality of Galway - Cavendish saw 318 voters cast ballots.

In most municipalities, voters will have another opportunity to vote prior to the regular election day. A second advance poll has been scheduled for this Saturday from 9 a.m. to 8 p.m. For the location of these polls, voters are advised to check with the municipal office.

The following are the attendance figures at advance polls for polling stations in municipalities covered by The Times: Anson, Hindon and Minden 218; Bicroft 40; Cardiff 304; Dysart et al 99; Glamorgan 15; Lutterworth 176; Monmouth 72; Sherborne et al 124; Snowdon 20; Stanhope 183; Somerville 118; Laxton Digby and Longford 60; Galway-Cavendish 318.

Normally, the municipal polling day would fall on Monday, however, since that will be Remembrance Day, the voting has been moved ahead to November 12. In all municipalities the polls will be open from 11 a.m. to 8 p.m. Check with your municipal office for the location of your polling station.

Voters lined up Saturday to exercise their franchises at Minden's advance poll. Some 218 municipal residents voted during the day. For some it was their last bit of business before heading south for the winter, others planned to be deep in the bush hunting deer on polling day, while seasonal residents made up another large group of voters. A second advance poll is scheduled for this Saturday at the municipal office with the main polling day scheduled for next Tuesday.

BIA, Hydro help with crime prevention

This is national Crime Prevention Week in Canada. A number of low-key activities have been planned to assist in marking the special week in the Minden area.

The Minden Business Improvement Area has again assisted in the promotion of the week and its aims by distributing posters and booklets to Minden and area merchants. The posters feature a display of logos from a number of self-help programs available to communities interested in becoming involved in reducing crime. Included in the display are a number of programs underway in this area, such as Neighbourhood Watch and Operation Identification, among others.

The BIA is also responsible for the distribution of a booklet outlining how individuals can protect themselves against criminals. The booklets, which are available free at various retail outlets in the Minden area, outline suggestions for streetproofing children, taking measures to protect personal property and that of your neighbours.

Another program launched this week, is the "Hydro On Watch" or HOW program being instituted by Ontario Hydro. According to the manager of the local Hydro office, Cal Wilson, "HOW is a formalization of activities our staff have been carrying on for many years.

"The essence of the program is to make efficient and effective use of the radios we have in our vehicles," Mr. Wilson said, "to alert authorities to incidents in progress."

Area staff are being briefed on what to look for and what should be reported immediately to the authorities, such as police and fire departments, ambulance services, hospital and animal control offices.

To help in making the program known, logos have been put up on all 2600 Hydro radio equipped vehicles.

"This program is being supported in principle by the Ministry of the Solicitor General of Ontario," Wilson added.

Scrutiny of zoning bylaw continues

tonight because some legitimate concerns that were expressed at the last meeting. It is inevitable that in a project this size some errors are made. Most municipalities have to make amendments up to six months later, (after a bylaw is passed) but that doesn't mean all objections can be met," he commented. Lehman was asked if changes can be made to either the Official Plan or the zoning bylaw after they have been passed.

He replied that as a general trend in other municipalities, there are an average of ten amendments to the bylaw and two amendments to the official plan each year.

The planner was asked by Verne Graham of Minden if there had been any public input into the official plan. Lehman explained there had been three advertised open house meetings in 1983-84 and that the municipal planning board had also met to discuss the plan before it was submitted to the Ministry for approval.

When asked if the Ministry had made any changes, Lehman answered, "Yes there were a few changes," prompting Graham to comment, "That means you have an official plan that the public hasn't seen and now this zoning bylaw is based on that plan." "Why hasn't the official plan been made public so we can look at it? You are hiding something."

Graham also requested the existing bylaw and the proposed bylaw be made available so comparisons can be made.

In response to the criticism Councillor Dave Stevens commented, "You were invited to three meetings. How can you say the public doesn't know what is going on?"

Councillor Pat Burk

pointed out the official plan is available to the public at the municipal offices.

Lehman also noted the changes made by the ministry to the plan were of a bureaucratic nature and had no effect on property.

Several ratepayers repeated comments made at the previous meeting that the zoning bylaw should have been mailed to all ratepayers before being approved by council as had been done in Stanhope Township.

Lehman responded, "During my fourteen year career, I don't know of any municipality that sent out the bylaw before it was passed," noting that because of the inevitable changes that must be made in the draft copy of the bylaw, the document would not be valid.

Note: Copies of the proposed comprehensive zoning bylaw were mailed to property owners in Stanhope Township in July. Council held a series of public and special meetings in July and August to consider public concerns and objections. The bylaw and amendments to the bylaw based on those objections were passed on August 24 and the amendments mailed to ratepayers in September.

Council was praised by several ratepayers for changes that have been made in the proposed zoning in Carnarvon to facilitate commercial development but there was some concern over the accuracy of the zoning maps.

Lehman explained the drawings were based on assessment maps and that severances that had occurred since the maps were prepared, had been taken into consideration. These maps were the most accurate and practical for zoning purposes because they detail property lines. "It would have cost over $100,000 to prepare new maps," he commented.

During the discussions it was revealed that apart from the site of the Freightmaster building, there is no industrially zoned land in the municipality.

Deputy Reeve Ed Pergolas explained that while council has been discussing possible sites, an industrial zone must first have adequate hydro power and that at present, a suitable site does not exist. When council was asked when they intended to pass the bylaw, Pergolas repeated his assertion that the bylaw would not be approved until all concerns had been considered.

Councillor Gary Kenney suggested that rather than pass the bylaw at a regular meeting of council, a special meeting be held. "We can present the bylaw then and if there are no problems, we can pass it," he said.

Council ruled out the suggestion because of the possible difficulty in resolving all objections during the meeting, but concurred with the planner's suggestion that another open house be held to allow residents an opportunity to discuss specific concerns on an individual basis.

The open house will be held at the municipal committee room on Wednesday, November 13 from 3-7 p.m. The municipal planner Bob Lehman and municipal staff members will be on hand to discuss the proposed bylaw with interested citizens.

No to the ward system

As the voters in Anson, Hindon and Minden head to the polls next week, they will be asked to voice an opinion on whether a ward system of council representation should be introduced into the municipality. A commentary to the right of the editorial, prepared by officials in the provincial government, explains what, the authors believe, are some of the positive aspects of the ward system. As expressed a number of times in this column, we feel the ward system is both unnecessary and would be divisive if implemented in this municipality.

It has been suggested that the areas outside the village, Ingoldsby, Blairhampton or Carnarvon, have been isolated or forgotten when all members of council have a close association with Minden village. The present council, of course, represents an almost opposite situation, with a harmonious balance between the main village and the outlying areas.

However, residents of the smaller centres can ensure they have a voice on the council without resorting to the parochialism a ward system would bring to local politics. Each time a municipal election is called, all they have to do is nominate one of their number and support his or her candidacy. That practice would have to be followed within a ward system anyway, so why not ensure it happens now?

As the article to the right points out, a ward system increases the power of the reeve and deputy reeve by creating natural divisions between members of council. Exploited adroitly, those who feel the ward system would give them better representation could find that so-called advantage lost to squabbling by rival councillors manipulated by a reeve and deputy.

The ward system suits a larger centre with heavy population concentration. It is not suitable for a community our size which is essentially a rural municipality. We urge you to read the presentation at the right, to consider the possible outcome if a ward system is implemented and then vote for this municipality's best interests as a single entity in which all citizens are represented by all members of the council. We feel the only reasonable action is to vote "NO" on the ward system question.

Ward system comments

The following commentary was prepared by officials in the provincial government to outline some of the benefits associated with implementation of a ward system in an electoral district. The commentary does not reflect government policy on the matter, but is merely presented as a basis for discussion. The editorial at the left, offers a second point of view on the question of ward representation.

It is generally accepted that the "ward" system provides voters with representatives who are more intimately interested in and more knowledgeable about the needs of the citizens in the wards they represent. Given this close relationship between the councillor and the elector, the argument has also been made that the ward system has a built-in danger of making elected representatives more parochial. To counter this view, proponents of a ward system, whether of the single - or multi-member type note that ward systems tend to produce better clarity, accountability, and representativeness.

Under a ward system, the people have a clear and direct access to the municipal councillors and to the decisions that they make. This enables them to express an informed opinion about the performance of their councillor and the quality of the services provided by council to the municipality, through the electoral process. At the same time, elected officials are provided with opportunity to test public opinion in the area which they represent.

A ward system guarantees representation for the people of a given geographical area and improves their access to their elected representatives. For instance, the residents of any former police village or annexed area are guaranteed representation on the municipal council.

A single or multi-member ward system tends to disperse power. It might be perceived that it would be harder for a council whose membership represents diverse interests to act in unison. However, the smaller the ward the more responsive the council is to the needs of small groups in the community and the better representation of neighbourhoods and community groupings or settlements of defined natural areas.

Ward systems tend to reduce the cost of election campaigns by reducing the number of electors a candidate must contact directly or indirectly. The more voters a candidate must contact, the less he/she can rely on personal energy and resources to publicize his/her platform. The larger the municipality, the greater the importance of organizational and financial resources and access to the media. As a consequence, the academic literature indicates that successful candidates in at-large elections frequently live in the more affluent neighbourhoods and there are often large sections of the community where no elected representative resides. Ward elections not only reduce the costs of campaigns, they reduce the importance of the media and give subcommunity organizations more influence.

Ward systems tend to encourage a high voter turnout. In a study prepared for the Waterloo Region Review Commission, it was shown that the level of voter turnout in municipalities with wards was consistently higher for the election years 1972, 1974 and 1976 than was voter turnout in municipalities with an at-large system, during the same election years.

At-Large or General Vote System

The election of a municipal council using the "at-large" or "general vote" system provides, theoretically, the broadest electoral base of support of all elected officials.

At-large systems tend to emphasize the community as a whole rather than what one might term the "neighbourhood" as the basis for decision making.

At-large elections tend to complicate the task of the voter by requiring him/her to become informed on the policy positions of a large number of candidates.

At-large elections tend to favour incumbents more than ward elections because in the absence of party labels and platforms and given the long list of candidates, a premium is placed on name recognition as a means of deciding how to vote. This situation gives incumbents an obvious advantage. Since incumbents are favoured by at-large elections, the level of electoral competition tends to be low. Serious candidates are reluctant to challenge incumbents and acclamations to office are commonplace.

At-large elections increase the cost of campaigns and thus favour candidates with large organizational and financial resources and access to the media. This situation gives incumbents a great advantage because it can be expensive to become known.

Criteria for the determination of ward boundaries

The Ontario Municipal Act does not set the criteria for determining ward boundaries. Therefore, it is necessary to look elsewhere for guidance and direction on this matter.

A review of the academic literature on electoral systems, decisions of the Ontario Municipal Board and the criteria adopted for the Ontario Electoral Boundaries Commission indicated that when a council or an assembly is considering ward or riding boundaries, the following criteria should be taken into consideration:

- (a) community or diversity of interests;
- (b) means of communication and accessibility;
- (c) topographical features;
- (d) population or electoral trends;
- (e) recognition of settlement patterns and community groupings;
- (f) special geographic considerations, including in particular sparsity, density or relative growth or loss of population;
- (g) as far as is practicable, wards should be compact and contiguous. Unnecessary irregularities or sinuosities should be avoided;
- (h) As far as is practicable, there should be equal representation for equal population/electors. That is to say, wards with the same number of council members should have approximately the same population/electors and similarly any two-member ward should have approximately twice the population/electors of a single-member ward;
- (i) As far as is practicable, the total population/electors in each ward should not be greater or less than 25% of the average population/electoral population per ward. (The average population/electoral population is arrived at by dividing the total population/electoral population of the municipality by the total number of councillors elected by wards).

Federation of Ontario Naturalists

Whirling and twirling in a visual jungle, little flocks suddenly appear in the garden. They add zest and frivolity - while all else is seriousness, amid the rush to prepare for winter. Flashing tail-fans of slate-grey and stark-white, these characters flit from low branches to lawn and garden. Then, back again. Strange little twitters, warbles and even soft trills punctuate autumn's rustle.

Slate-coloured juncos, now en route south, are among the many living components which enrich Ontario's landscape. Seen by everyone, and easily attracted, they reveal a fascinating life history to those who really look.

Junco's paint-by-numbers appearance - dark grey head, body, wings and tail, contrasting with stark-white belly and outermost tail feathers - make this sparrow-sized bird unmistakable. In contrast with the male's near-black appearance, females are pale - almost dusky - and usually have a grey feather separating slate from white. The vast numbers of progeny accompanying the adults are tinged with brown - the females especially so.

The adults have spent the summer distributed through the boreal and mixed forests of the Canadian Shield, busily raising two broods. Favouring edges and openings, juncos establish rather large territories - up to 50 acres depending upon habitat.

Within this territory, they seek out a protected nook on the ground in which to nest. Sometimes, it's beneath the 'skirt' of conifer branches or other vegetation brushing the ground. More often, it's in the crannies of wind-thrown tree roots or the eroded base of an old hillside stump. Within this shelter, the juncos build a beautiful cup, in two parts. The outer is woven of root-lets and grasses, while the inner is a lining of the finest of grasses, mosses and bits of hair - gathered from throughout the territory.

Each brood of 4 - 6 whitish or blueish eggs takes about 11 days of incubation, in which both parents take turns. The fast-growing progeny feed voraciously upon the steady stream of insects and seeds gathered by the parents. The inordinate protein required by early growth - the chicks will multiply their weight perhaps 5 times in the first month - is met by the abundant supply of caterpillars and other insects. As summer wears on, adults and young become increasingly dependant upon weed seeds, their main food. This is but one reason that juncos are steadfastly protected by Canadian law.

Memories of tanks and mules

In 1939 Canada was caught in the grip of a world wide depression that had lasted a decade.

Although unemployment and poverty was on the minds of most Canadians there was growing concern over the threat of war in Europe. One young man who was all too aware of the significance of Germany's expansionism was Albert Jobin of Toronto.

We spoke to him recently at his home on Paradise Lake, just east of Haliburton. It seems fitting that it was a grey, gloomy day as Albert thought back to the time 45 years ago when war was imminent.

Besides reading the newspaper accounts of the events in Germany, Albert had talked to his friends who had returned from the Spanish Civil War and knew that Germany had a formidable war machine. "My dad knew the war was coming. He had fought in the first war; in the trenches. He knew what it was like, and he had had a bellyfull. When the King and Queen visited Canada Dad told me we were in for war. And he was right."

When war broke out Albert enlisted with the 48th Highlanders in October 1939 and received his basic training in Toronto. "In 1940 I transferred to the Ontario Tank Corp (OTC) because I wanted to be in a regiment; I didn't want to be in the reinforcements."

He was transferred to Camp Borden, but at that time there were no tanks. "The first ones we got were American ones from the First World War and if you could get 100 feet in them you had had a good day."

In spite of the outdated equipment, training continued. Albert's first encounter with the enemy was not on the battlefield but in Halifax. Members of the OTC's escorted prisoners of war from the east coast to prison camps in Monteith and Espanola in northern Ontario.

In June 1941 the OTC was shipped overseas to Greenock, Scotland then to Salisbury Plain, England for further training. "We formed the first Armoured Brigade commanded by Brigadier Worthington. The three regiments were the Ontarios (The 11th Canadian Tank Regiment) the Calgarys (12th CTRs) and the Three Rivers (14th CTRs).

The Ontario Regiment received the first Churchill tanks that were built. It weighed 60 tons and the firing was a two pounder and a Browning 30. We thought we had the world but they had no firing power. They proved that at Dieppe."

Later the Churchills were replaced by Sherman tanks, similar to the one outside the Royal Canadian Legion hall in Haliburton.

"We were just an ordinary tank brigade, not like the 5th Division. They were heavy armour. We were the soldiers on the front line. They walked right beside us all the time."

The brigade was stationed on the south east coast of England between Brighton and Dover in anticipation of an invasion from the mainland, then on June 22, 1943 the regiment embarked from Scotland on troop carriers and barges carrying the Sherman tanks and the ammunition trucks.

Their real destination was Sicily but it was some time before they found out. "The officers never told us what was going on. We were issued summer uniforms so we figured we were going to Africa. It was just starting to get mopped up then. The sailors finally told us where we were going, then a few days later the officers told us. They had wanted to keep it a secret. You remember what happened at Dieppe. The Germans knew all about our plans and they were waiting for us. The Calgarys (12th CTR's) got wiped right out at Dieppe. Not too many came back from there. I knew quite a few of them too."

The ill fated invasion was on the minds of the soldiers during the two week voyage but when they landed at Syracuse there was little resistance. "It was nothing like Dieppe. The Germans had left Sicily. The Stukkas were after us all the time, but the Italians only had small tanks with two pounders. The big shots figured it would take two months but we took Sicily in three weeks."

After a month on the island the troops crossed to the mainland.

"We knew then we were going right to Germany. It wasn't like other wars where you go so far then stop and negotiate. They gave us a point to reach and we had to reach it."

"The real fighting started when we landed in Italy. We were up against Goering's troops and the S.S."

As the allies pushed north the enemy fought a rear-guard action through the rolling countryside. "The Germans would get up in the hills where they could spot us coming. They could pinpoint us all the time. When we captured one hill they would just move on to the next one."

One of Albert's more frightening experiences took place at the Queena Airport. "Our reconnaissance told us there was nothing there, but the Germans had buried themselves in under heavy fog. They had let our boys all through their lines and never bothered them. So we moved in. When the fog lifted we found we were surrounded by 88's. We were sitting ducks in the middle of the airport. They knocked us out left and right. It took us all day to take the airport and we lost 22 tanks. We were lucky though. We only lost two men."

The intense fighting continued as the allies; Canadian, British, Irish, Americans, New Zealanders, Gurkhas, and Poles, advanced north. The 11th CTRs were involved in the major battles at Cassino and Artona. "I was a muleskinner at Artona. We were there around Christmas 1943. Our tanks had got bogged down in mud about five miles outside of the town. We had to carry ammunition and supplies on mules to the tanks up front." We lost quite a few guys there. The mules and the men would step on mines. When we went over the mines in the tank it wouldn't bother us. It just blew off the track. But the infantry had it terrible. They were the ones who used to suffer."

"After we took Artona we went up as far as Florence. That's where I got wounded. An 88 went right through the tank. It was one of those lucky things, I guess. I didn't get killed but I got shrapnel wounds. I was out of action for a month. My wife got a letter that I was coming home and by rights I should have been out of action for six months, but they just sewed you up and put you back. When I went back I still had all my bandages on. That's the way it was. You ask any soldier who was in Italy. There just weren't enough reinforcements. We were the forgotten army over there. I'm not bitter, but people seem to forget there were Canadians fighting in Italy."

Albert joined the fighting again and although he expected to continue moving north through the Alps into Germany the advance stopped near Leghorn and the Canadians were shipped to Belgium in time for the spring offensive of 1945.

"We formed our own army then and that's the way it should be. McNaughton didn't want us to go with the British. He wanted one army - the Canadian army. He had had enough in the first war when Canada did all the spearheads, and the British would take all the credit after we took the trenches."

The Canadians captured an island off the coast of Belgium then pushed inland to Nijmegen, Holland, and on to Arnhem where Albert fought in his last battle.

Albert remembers fondly the welcome the Canadian troops received as they marched into towns and villages in Belgium and Holland. The reception was in stark contrast to his experiences in Italy.

"In Italy, as we advanced against the German and Italian armies, we were surrounded by citizens of the country. These were the people (whose army) we were fighting against. You felt like you always had to be looking over your shoulder."

It was a different story in Belgium and Holland where the soldiers were welcomed as liberators. "There were parades, big welcomes, kisses and celebrating as we marched through the towns. The people of Holland treated us like mothers and fathers. They were happy to see us. Their welcome helped to make our job of soldiering seem worthwhile."

The warm welcome offered by the Dutch created a special place in Albert's heart for Holland. "They showed their respect for Canada, and continue to do so today, and in turn we respect them."

At the end of the war Albert witnessed the historic signing of the peace treaty. "About 30 of us went about 155 miles into Germany to sign the peace. That was scary. There were Germans with their 88s on both sides of the road. One flicker and we would have all been gone. But they were beat by then. They had oxen pulling their tanks to save gas and were using bicycles. The soldiers were old men and kids 11 and 12 years old."

After the signing of the treaty Albert took a six week leave; his first in two years, then set sail for home from England. Like all soldiers who fought in the war, Albert is proud of his regiment and his fellow troopers."

"We were all friends; one big family and we still have reunions every year. But we were lucky. We only lost 69 members in two years of action. The Three Rivers and the Calgarys took a beating but we seemed to have the Lord on our side

Education today

The second article in our series on Primary Education in Haliburton County is written by Diane Dawson, a teacher of Kindergarten at Archie Stouffer Elementary School in Minden. Mrs. Dawson's topic is:

The Importance of Talking To and Sharing Experiences With Your Child

Young children have two very strong needs ... to move and to talk. We are always anxious to have our children talk early in their lives and from then on we don't seem to be able to get a word in ourselves and we search for ways to keep them quiet.

Language is the window to our child's inner thoughts. In infancy, we react to our child's wishes and whims in non-verbal ways. Eventually, they tell and in fact demand their needs, wants and desires. Language provides an easy way to interpret what is exactly rattling around inside their heads.

He asks questions, millions of them; he loves to hear himself talk; he loves to practice repetitive songs and rhymes. It's like music to his ears.

The stimulation of others talking and communicating their experiences spur more questions and interesting stories producing increased vocabulary and understanding of the proper usage and meaning of words.

In communicating, talking and sharing experiences with your child, you give him a reference line with which to compare himself to others. You supply him with time perception (how things were "then" and "now"). Sharing experiences of other social and cultural backgrounds helps him to understand that there is a world out there beyond his, and that outside of his family circle families operate differently and the world is a very large place indeed.

Speaking to your child helps him to draw out and analyze his fears, frustrations, joys, etc. and allows you to present problems to him to try to deal with in advance before they occur, (i.e. - death).

Some children won't be active participants in discussions, but it gives the non-verbal child a chance to learn in an unthreatening and loving atmosphere. At the point when he is ready to talk about things, you have given him lots of "input" and information to draw on.

In early life, most of the child's development is determined by his learning at home, which plays a major part in drawing out and structuring his abilities, moulding his personality and behaviour, giving direction to his interests and shaping his attitudes. The child's curiosity reaches out in an attempt to relate firstly and mostly to parents and then upon entering school, the circle of communication includes peers and teachers, sharing common and unique experiences.

Keep on talking ... you may tire out before the children do, but if you were as lucky as I, there are many fond memories of my parents relating their childhood experiences to me; the walking miles to school, limited allowances, etc. ... my gosh, I think I just told my own child the same story! That's what traditions are made of.

Their words are their tools; talk to them in the gentle language of love.

October was as good as any month we've had so far this year, even so we had a lot of rain in the first half of the month. The last half of the month was very pleasant with many sunny, clear days. There was no trace of snow in October, which is a bit unusual, we at least have a few flurries most years.

and qualifications of our candidates who run for office. They all have their value, if you like them as persons or not.

The issues the letter addressed, such as a trailer park, are before the OMB (Ontario Municipal Board), leave it alone. But it seems to me you would like to see our local government in court about the whole issue and when you recommend who should be elected, you were out of line because you have everyone mixed up. Penny Googh runs for reeve, not councillor. And what about Paul Harrison, a fine outstanding citizen, you don't even mention him. Paul is running for councillor.

Outdoors

seeds - among them, ragweed and crabgrass - are picked from the forest and meadow floors. The characteristic, scratch ... scratch ... peck is a 'trade-mark' as juncos scatter the overlying leaf duff to expose seeds below.

Cued by shortening day-length, and accelerated by early snowfall, juncos congregate into small flocks - usually 15 - 100 - birds. During peak migration, a stream of such flocks follow each other. Southward, they continue, until adequate seed material will be available throughout the winter. For a few, this will be as close as southern Ontario; the rest will spread through the U.S., as far south as the Gulf.

During the migration, juncos are easily attracted by fine grains - like millet, oats or wheat - scattered on the ground. Unlike jays, finches and other popular visitors, juncos almost never use raised platform feeders. Simply scattering a handful or two of fine seed on the ground or snow will provide excellent viewing opportunities, waylaid hungry migrants for 1 - 3 days (depending upon weather.) In the more southerly areas - particularly near the Great Lakes - many juncos will 'set up shop' to spend the winter near feeders.

Alarmed during feeding - even by an innocently passing pedestrian - juncos take to the wing in a twirling confusion, all uttering snapping-sounding chirps. Like the action of many fish schools, this confusion makes it more difficult for predators to catch any of the flock's occupants.

Enjoy the juncos which will soon stream through - it will be (shiver) April before their number return to restake their territories.

All I am trying to say is just because a person won't agree with your outlook, doesn't mean he won't do an excellent job in the local government. Looks and actions are deceiving.

We are free people living in a democratic society. We do not need a socialistic environment here. Stay up north Dave, ...and next time, do your own research.

Just to set the record straight by Elgin Stouffer:

In response to the headlines in last week's paper. I would like to maintain a less critical approach and touch only on our effectiveness in office.

After a careful review of our workloads it appears I have worked more hours over the past three years for Haliburton Highlands and Stanhope in particular than my two critical opponents combined.

As for taking the extra day to reach a decision on where to serve, for me this was a serious decision which I didn't take lightly, and I needed all the time available.

Elgin Stouffer,
Deputy Reeve
of Stanhope Township.

Editor:

Please permit me to submit this open letter to the voters of Stanhope.

At the Stanhope 'Meet the Candidates Night' on Saturday, October 26, it was suggested that those who are opposed to the airport just don't know what they are talking about. I'd like to set the record straight as it applies to me.

I was a part owner in the Barrie Airport for five years and can speak with personal knowledge of the financial ups and downs of running one. To have been taken over by the municipality would have solved most of our problems - but even such a viable community as Barrie, with its wealth of already well-established industry, C.G.E., Radio Shack, Mansfield Rubber, Black & Decker, etc., was unwilling to take the risk.

Were you able to attend the MTC Night? If not you missed an opportunity to learn a little of how things are run in Stanhope.

This past summer the council has been presented with two petitions - one regarding a trailer park on Halls Lake, the other regarding the airport. Both have been ignored. You would have learned that the subject matter of the petitions and the legitimate concerns of the citizens signing them was secondary to the 'way' each was presented. You would have learned that 200 plus names on a petition in Stanhope is considered 'not very many' when compared with the 3879 names on the voters list. (When the election results come out check that 200 plus against the actual turnout.)

You would have learned that $40,000 of your 1986 taxes have already been committed to the airport by our present Reeve without even consulting his 1986 council. When asked by the Chairman of the Airport Committee if the $40,000 discussed in 1985 could still be counted on, our Reeve replied, "Yes", and no further explanation was given. That's confidence for you!

You wouldn't have learned how many Stanhope taxpayers use the airport. A pointed question asking for this information was answered with a vague, "A few".

You wouldn't have learned why taxes in Stanhope exceed those in neighbouring municipalities even though the tax base in Stanhope could be considered ideal and is the envy of those municipalities.

I hope you have learned that it's important to vote. The council we elect this time around is what we get for the next three years. At least we in Stanhope have an election this year. With so many of our neighbouring townships declaring acclamations we have an almost complete slate, so in closing I'd like to personally thank all those public spirited citizens who have allowed their names to appear on the ballot. Win or lose on November 12th, every one of them deserves our sincere thanks.

Minden did it again! Thanks in part to the publication, by your excellent newspaper, of the Home Support Services columns, 32 bridge enthusiasts joined in a 3 day tournament at the Drop-In Centre. The 16 teams represented Wilberforce, Gooderham, Minden, Carnarvon and Haliburton, with individuals from Kinmount, Redstone Lake and Tory Hill - an excellent cross-section of Haliburton County.

But in the October 31 finals it was Helen Stott and Doris Craig of Minden who out-finessed the other hopefuls: second prize went to Phyllis and Russell Woodcock of the home town.

I moved up here a few years ago and the bridge players seemed few in numbers, however, that soon changed. Other incomers with the same impression may wish to consider 2 1/2 possibilities. The friendly Gooderham club meets Tuesdays in the school at 7:30 p.m., while the Drop-In Centre hosts the Monday afternoon group at 1:15 p.m. in an equally friendly and comfortable atmosphere. The "half" involves the Haliburton Lake on Thursdays - when the Snowbirds aren't flying.

Thanks again for your continued interest in, and support of, the Haliburton Seniors.

Valiant effort fails to save puppies found at dump

Eight newborn pups, found at the Snowdon garbage dump have died despite the valiant efforts of the Lochlin area resident.

On Wednesday, October 23, Helen Robertson discovered the pups abandoned in a plastic bag at the Lochlin dump. They had been left to die in near freezing conditions.

Helen rescued the animals and for over a week she had her hands full caring for them.

The pups were placed in a lined cardboard box in a room that had a constant temperature of 85 to 90 degrees. They were fed every two hours with infant formula mixed with egg yolks, corn syrup and a pinch of citric acid. Because of the importance of sanitation, Helen mixed only enough formula for each feeding to ensure there was no bacterial growth.

The care and attention appeared to be working wonders. There had been some concern that one of the pups had contracted pneumonia but the tiny animal rallied.

The report of the abandoned pups caused some angry reactions in the community. Helen echoed many people's thoughts when she expressed her concern over the cruelty of a situation where helpless animals are taken from their mother and left to the mercy of a hostile environment.

There have been other reports of animals being abandoned at local dumps during the winter, an act that most people find irresponsible and inhumane.

When The Times visited the Robertson home several days after the pups were discovered, they appeared to be thriving under Helen's care but last Thursday the animals succumbed to pneumonia one by one.

Helen said later they probably never had a chance, no matter how optimistic she was. Unlike mother's milk, the formula they were fed did not contain antibodies and consequently they were extremely susceptible to disease.

Grant approved

A grant of $15,462 has been given to the Haliburton Highlands Museum in Haliburton village by the Ontario Ministry of Citizenship and Culture. The grant was announced in a press release issued at the end of last month by the ministry.

The grant was one of 201 handed out across the province, representing some $2,617,000 in assistance.

According to the ministry, the funding is made available to museums meeting new standards introduced last year by the ministry. The standards are designed to improve the museums' facilities and activities in the communities they serve.

Agreement opens snowmobile trails

This season's trail pass from the Haliburton County Snowmobile Association (H.C.S.A.) will entitle members to ride the trails of four neighbouring clubs!

The H.C.S.A. broke new ground in Ontario on October 4, when an agreement was reached between the H.C.S.A. and the Dorset Snowmobile Club, Buckhorn District Snowmobile Club, Twin Mountains Snowmobile Club (Bobcaygeon) and the Somerville Snowmobile Club (Burnt River). Negotiations for such a reciprocal agreement have been hampered in years past by infighting between the two provincial associations. Trails foreman, Tom Prentice, has been involved in sensitive negotiations at the provincial level this summer and was instrumental in bringing the five clubs to an amicable understanding.

Business in the Highlands will benefit from this new agreement as well. "Safari" touring or snowmobile overnight trips will now be possible and will make Haliburton County an ideal overnight stop. Many snowmobilers who previously would not travel in the Highlands because of conflicting trail passes, will now be able to ride from Peterborough County to the Lake of Bays. The Orillia area to the West of Haliburton County has been open to H.C.S.A. members for the past three years. Exact mileage totals are not available as yet, but it would be safe to say that very close to 1600 km of snowmobile trails are now accessible with a membership in the H.C.S.A.

Police believe 12 involved in cottage break-ins

Police believe they are coming closer to solving a series of over 50 break-ins at seasonal residents in the Eagle Lake and Harburn Road areas. The investigation has spread to include possibly 12 individuals, however, the police have yet to reveal the identity of those under scrutiny.

Investigators believe the individuals were responsible for a series of break-ins and thefts at premises located on Cranberry, Redstone, Coleman Lakes and at buildings along the Harburn Road and at Eagle Lake.

Police have apparently recovered some of the stolen property and are expanding the investigation to include the questioning of more individuals. At this point no charges have been laid.

The investigation is being carried out by Constable Ken Wesley and Ben Manuge.

An Orillia visitor dis-

According to the police, Basil Smith, 35, parked his 1967 Ford convertible near the motel. A search by the police revealed the missing car had been driven to Snowdon Township where it had been pushed over a steep embankment. Damage was estimated at $3,000.

The police said the ignition had been "hot wired".

Constable Al Bibby was the investigating officer.

Snowdon candidates meeting

Aside from some concern that the residents of the township need to be more aware of council business, the ratepayers of Snowdon Township appear satisfied with their elected representatives in municipal government.

Reeve Bob Vick, Deputy Reeve Dwain Wruth, councillors Jack Hills and Ron Burk and Board of Education trustee George Simmons, have been acclaimed to their positions for another term.

A lack of candidates at the close of nominations forced the extension of the deadline and subsequently Doris Robertson, Bill Powell and Keith Schraeder entered the race for the vacant council seat.

The returning members of council and the board and the candidates for the council seat were present for an all candidates meeting at the Gelert Community Centre on Friday attended by 30 ratepayers.

Bill Powell was the first of the three political hopefuls to address the small audience. He described himself as a family man and a businessman who takes a strong interest in the community. His main concerns were the improvement of the municipal roads and growth in the community with an emphasis on remaining within the budget.

Doris Robertson told her audience she has always been interested in the township during her thirteen years as a taxpayer. She said that although she has limited knowledge of municipal affairs, she is willing to learn and wants to become involved. She added she had no promises to make and although she believes the township has been well governed, a woman's input is needed on council.

A native of Gelert, Keith Schraeder spent 20 years in the armed forces before returning to settle permanently in Snowdon Township. During his military career he said he had been involved in decision making at all levels and had also served as a career counsellor. He told the audience he felt there had been improvements in the township, adding "It is my impression that people here are satisfied with council."

"If elected, I have no intention of rocking the boat. I will work with council in the best interests of the taxpayer," he commented. He concluded his remarks stating, "I am not asking for your vote. I am asking you to vote for the candidate who will best serve the interests of the taxpayer."

Reeve Bob Vick expressed his appreciation to the ratepayers for their support over the years adding he did not believe he would be running in the next (1988) election.

He concluded his brief remarks with the statement, "I don't have much to offer but a few roads and honesty."

His address was followed by brief speeches from the acclaimed council members who expressed their gratitude to the electorate and promised to continue serving the best interests of the ratepayers.

Trustee George Simmons said he would continue to ensure that children have the highest quality of education and that taxpayers' money is put to the best use. Noting that 60% of Snowdon's taxes go to education, Simmons outlined the difficulties faced by the Board at a time when provincial grants are declining. He offered some hope, noting that the county council and the board intend to meet with the Ministry of Education to see if funding can be improved.

He pointed out that the board had approached the Ministry to be included under the funding formula that applies to northern schools, but the request was turned down.

Several ratepayers in attendance expressed their reservations about the location of the municipal supply of winter road sand and asked to be included on the agenda at the next meeting of council.

Concerns were also raised that the public needs to be better informed on council affairs.

When it was suggested that a public council meeting be held every three months allowing anyone not included on the agenda to speak, Reeve Vick noted that all meetings were open to the public unless the discussion was in a committee of the whole and that during his term no one had ever been refused permission to speak.

Season ends for HHSS kickers

by Tom MacLeod

On Thursday, October 3, the HHSS senior soccer team travelled to Peterborough for the third consecutive year to take part in the Kawartha Championship. The team qualified for the tournament by winning their own league division with a record of five wins and one loss and by capping the league title by a close overtime victory over I.E. Weldon Secondary School.

In the two previous years at the meet, the team was highly outplayed by superior Peterborough clubs. This year was different, however, as coach Glenn Scully and team came in prepared to give everything they had.

Their first match was against a tough Adam Scott team. The two teams played very strongly in the first half, arriving at a 0-0 draw. At this point, Haliburton knew that it would not be like the two previous years.

At the midway point of the second half, Adam Scott netted a goal to put them ahead 1-0. Scott hung on to win the game with the same score even though the Redmen had several good scoring chances in the remaining time left. Not one Haliburton player went with -out making at least one key play as their offence and defence played extremely well, including goalie Darryl Goodall who stopped 13 of 14 shots against him.

In the consolation game, Haliburton faced another strong team, this time from Cobourg West S.S. In this game, Haliburton struck first as Bill Wueilleme scored on a perfectly placed throw in from Lennie Johnston. Cobourg tied the game shortly after, but Haliburton regained the lead as Dennis McKee took advantage of a beautiful corner kick from Paul Milne. McKee made the score 3-1 on his second goal, this time from Johnston and Eoin Ross.

The Redmen went ahead 4-1 as Milne scored directly on a strong corner kick. With less than 15 minutes left to play, it appeared as if Haliburton would win their first ever Kawartha match, but Cobourg scored three quick, unanswered goals as they refused to give up.

This tied the game at four goals apiece. The score stayed the same as regulation time ran out. The two teams then played two scoreless overtime periods. At this point, the teams had to select five players each to represent them in a shoot-off. The team with the most goals at the end would win.

Both Haliburton and Cobourg scored three goals on the opposing goalies and it was once again tied. Scoring for Haliburton were Chris "Fritz" Carl, John Vanderhorst and Dennis

Members of the HHSS soccer team were all smiles two weeks ago as they posed for a group photo. They had just secured the Kawartha Cup and were on their way to Peterborough for the next level of competition. As the accompanying report by Tom MacLeod notes, while the team put up a strong effort, they were unable to secure the necessary victories. Seen here with their coach Glen Scully, left, are team members Tom Eager, John Vanderhorst, Dennis McKee, Lennie Johnston, Lasse Roslind, Paul Kuno, Bill Wueilleme, Paul Milne, Chris Carl, Marcus Carl, Eoin Ross, Barry Scully, Kevin Sicard, Greg Newell, Scott Raymond and Darrell Goodall.

McKee.

The teams were forced to choose five more players for a sudden death shoot-off. Tom Eager scored for the Redmen but Cobourg quickly answered with one of their own. Eoin Ross then hit the goalpost and Cobourg took advantage by scoring to win the game with a final score of 9-8.

Haliburton was again forced to go home empty handed, but the team won a moral victory by knowing that they were of the same calibre as the Peterborough teams.

The team members feel they are getting better in each year due to superb coaching by Scully and by the good management of junior coach Bob Penfold who shapes the young players into senior quality.

Both the coach and team are optimistic about winning the Kawartha title next year.

Times, Vasey, Home win in Monday night action

It was a winning night for The Times, Vasey's Real Estate and Home Hardware during the Monday evening session of the Minden Men's Recreational Hockey League.

The Times team came up with a 6-4 win over Hartwick Construction while Vasey's downed Hall's 10-7 and the Home Hardware squad took the Rockcliffe 8-6.

Tim Carroll was the big gun for The Times, notching four of the six tallies. Two of his goals were unassisted. Carroll also assisted on the two other goals. Kim Colliss and Frazer Rogers rounded out the scoring for The Times picking up a goal and an assist each. Barry Shaw had three assists on the night, while Dennis Brule figured in one other goal.

Lee Bull and Peter Walker led the way for Hartwick scoring two goals each. One of Bull's goals was unassisted. He also assisted on the two markers notched by Walker. Other assists went to Greg Carpenter and Scot Hamilton.

Brian Shaw was the top gun for Vasey's Real Estate in their 10-7 romp over Hall's. He picked up four goals, one unassisted. Dave Rogers managed a pair and two assists. Singles went to Eldon Bull who also had two assists and Lou Reynolds. Dave Dollo and Dan Reid each helped the Vasey effort with three assists apiece.

Responding for Halls was Kevin Webb with three goals and an assist. Singles were scored by Ben Manuge who also picked up two assists and John McAdam also with a pair of assists.

Assists were also awarded to Bern Berry with two and Neal Hutchinson with one.

The Home Hardware winning effort received a big boost from Dean Hewitt who notched four goals in the evening. He also picked up two assists. John Dettman scored a pair of goals and three assists while single markers went to Dave Hartwick, unassisted and three assists, and Harold Cowen with three assists. Dean Hewitt also had three assists along with Doug Ray and Mike Jackson with singles.

Three players shared the Rockcliffe scoring laurels. Colin Wilson, Al Stender and Dave Brown each notched a pair. One of Brown's goals was unassisted. Stender also picked up an assist. Assists went to Bart Hilhorst with three, D. Pettes, Rick Mansfield and Dave Crego each with a single.

The action continues this Monday night at the Minden arena with the first game getting underway at 7 p.m. There is no admission charge for the games.

Juveniles win on a no-show

It was an easy, but frustrating night for the Minden Monarch Juveniles Friday as they claimed a victory over their counterparts from Omeme.

It was an easy evening because the well-disciplined team did not need to skate on to the ice to take the win. Only four players bothered to make the trip from Omeme for the match, meaning the game was forfeited and Minden won by default.

The frustration was felt by players and team management who are eager to demonstrate they still have the game winning ability that took them to the all-Ontario championship last year. The team still has the style and ability to win the games on the ice and should not have to see those talents left untested.

According to team officials, even though Omeme failed to ice a team, the team is responsible for half the ice costs and officiating expenses.

The team is on the road this weekend as they travel to Baltimore for a Sunday night match up. The game is scheduled for 4:30 p.m.

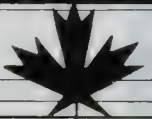

For those who clipped the team's schedule which appeared in The Times several weeks ago, note the following changes.

Millbrook has withdrawn its participation in the league this year to be replaced by a team from Sunderland.

The next home game for the Monarchs is Friday, November 15 at 8 p.m. when the Juveniles face Beaverton.

PeeWees tie, shut out Ops

The Minden Pee Wees tied a game and notched a lop-sided shut-out in two contests played during the weekend.

In the first game, the team battled to a 5 - 5 tie with Cannington on Saturday.

The Minden team was able to salvage the tie with only 16 seconds left in the game. Hunter Obee scored the tying goal as the final period drew to a close.

Cannington had opened a two goal lead with markers in the first and second periods. However, Minden stormed back with four goals in the second frame to take control of the contest. Scoring for Minden were Jaime Dollo, Darren Sawyer, Rob Ackerblade and Randy Bull.

However, near the close of the third period, Cannington managed three goals to take the lead. With just 16 seconds left, Hunter Obee scored to even the match.

On Sunday, the Pee Wees had no trouble controlling the play as they faced their counterparts from Ops. The Minden squad scored two goals in the first period, two in the second and four in the final frame.

Kent Taylor led the attack for Minden scoring a hat-trick with Randy Bull notching a pair and singles from Rob Ackerblade, Darren Sawyer and Joey Boyle.

Leaves form an insulating winter blanket

Fallen leaves! Just about now - raking away each weekend - we cry enough! And yet ... the annual leaf shed plays an array of important roles in nature. It might even be argued that leaves become more important after they leave the tree.

To the deciduous tree, leaf drop is essential as a moisture conservation mechanism. Unlike evergreen needles, these delicate leaves are unable to 'shut down' the pore-like openings which cover their lower surfaces. Without this, the vital woody tissues of the trunk would become desiccated and die. So the trees simply shed the entire leaves. This provides, at the same time, for annual rejuvenation - the complete replacement of worn out food-factories at next spring's peak of moisture, 'fertilizer' and sunshine.

Triggered by fall's diminishing light and abundant moisture, and accelerated by plummeting temperatures, most leafy plants grow a cork-like abscission layer at the base of their leaf stems. These not only cut off nutrient supply to the leaves - initiating the whole series of chemical and pigment changes which produce fall colour. These abscission layers also release the leaves, seal over the 'wounds' and provide for new growth buds, from which will sprout next year's branches.

But the story doesn't end when the leaves hit the ground; to the contrary, it's only beginning.

Throughout the coming winter, the leaf blanket now forming will provide fantastic insulation. This layer, 5 - 20 cm thick in Ontario's forests, is an efficient mix of cellulose and 'dead' air spaces - not unlike home insulation. Along with snow, which is also an efficient insulator, leaves sharply reduce the heat loss from warm soil to frigid winter air. Indeed, in dense woods, the combined leaf and snow blankets keep the ground - and its resident plants and animals - from freezing. Many of our sensitive flower and animal species simply could not survive winter's extreme cold otherwise.

But unlike snow, the leaf layer lasts right through both fall and spring periods, when the freeze-thaw cycle is often more damaging even than extreme cold. By slowing the ground's warming in the spring, the leaves will help to ensure that trilliums, hepatica, jack-in-the-pulpit and other woodland beauties will not sprout prematurely, to be killed off in flower by a late snow.

Ever wonder where all those leaves suddenly disappear to in the spring? The answer lies in an astronomic array of earthworms, insects, fungi and other decomposers which go to work, using those leaves for other roles. If you sit still in a woodland - or even on your lawn, about dusk - you'll hear worms dragging maple and other palatable leaves into their burrows. The leaves are mulched and rotted into raw nutrients - recycling the nutrients captured last year by the trees - and into the vast numbers of invertebrates upon which almost everything - from woodcock to toad, songbird to fox - ultimately depends.

And the by-product of this activity is yet another contribution to the rich humus soil - hundreds of years in development - which sustains the woods, the wildflowers, and the richness and variety of our landscape.

To anyone who will look there are many other stories in those leaves, too. Of oak and walnut trees, containing special chemicals that slow the growth of competitors nearby. Of grass and other meadow plants, which are promptly rotted if leaves are not removed. Of leaf nests and mouse trails. Have a fresh look; even in leaves, there's a world awaiting discovery.

Remembering

- by Bill Scott, MP -

As a federal Member of Parliament, I have the responsibility of representing veterans who fought in three wars for Canada and their survivors. In doing so, I deal with the Minister of Veterans Affairs, George Hees, himself a distinguished veteran, on a regular basis. It is our privilege to do our best to assist them in any way possible.

On November 11, we remember those who returned as well as the 110,000 who did not return from foreign shores. In the First World War to end all wars, which ended 67 years ago, 66,655 of our fellow Canadians gave up their lives for us. In the Second World War, 45,000 joined their comrades beneath foreign soil to keep our land free from oppression. A further 516 Canadian names are inscribed in the Korean Books of Remembrance as a result of our serving as a part of the United Nations Peacekeeping Force in the Korean War.

Only 675,000 men and women war veterans now remain in Canada. Of these, less than 25,000 are veterans of World War I. A further over 200,000 widows of veterans are registered with Veterans Affairs. I ask you to think of their sacrifices this week.

On November 11, 1918, the Armistice was declared bringing an end to the First World War. Sixty-seven years later we will gather at cenotaphs across the nation to share in Remembrance Day ceremonies. In the moment of silence on that day remember Vimy and Passchendaele of the First World War, remember Dieppe and D-Day of the Second World War and remember Chail-Li and Hill 355 of the Korean War. Canadians gave distinguished service in these battles and many of them remained there. We must remember, "Lest we forget".

A high-flying rider prepares to pass a slower driver during the Burnt River National Hare Scramble near Kinmount on Sunday.

Riders compete in scramble

Yet another event has been added to the sport calendar in the Haliburton Highlands.

On Sunday, the Burnt River National Hare Scramble was held for the first time south of Kinmount after being staged near Oshawa for the past four years and organizers of the event intend to continue holding the competition on the new track.

90 riders took part in the rain-soaked event that was organized and sponsored by the Oshawa Competition Motorcycle Club. The race can be best described as a combination Enduro and Motocross that last for two or three hours depending on the class entered.

Competing in five separate classes, the riders challenged the twisting ten kilometre course through dense woodland.

Riders who covered the furthest distance in the allotted time were declared winners of each class. The top finisher of the day, riding in the Expert class, was Blair Sharpless of Don Mills, a two time winner of the Corduroy Enduro. His victory gave him the 1985 Hare Scramble National Championship. Jeff Smith of Duluth, Minnesota, a two time World Motocross champion, captured the Veteran division.

John Martin, a Can-Am Factory rider from the United States was a favourite to win the event, but was delayed after breaking a front axle while leading his class and finished out of the top ten.

Dave "Winky" Dodd, a former resident of Haliburton, was also forced out in the first lap, due to electrical problems. His brother Steve had better luck, placing fourth in the Junior class.

Murray Beetlestone of Minden, the only local entrant, completed the gruelling course but a slow start kept him out of the money.

Dysart candidates face voters

While he had been concerned that the trustees rubber stamp decisions, he has come to realize such is not the case, he said, concluding with a call for support in the upcoming election.

After summarizing her past experience in business, Isobel Keefer said she sees a need for new blood on the board. She would endeavour to work within the budget in ensuring proper academic training for students. "I want to restrict the budget increases to 3-5%. Keeping taxes down is a must, because many people in the area are on fixed incomes," she said.

She concluded by saying her managing experience, her executive experience and her sense of honesty and fairness would make her an asset to the board.

Addressing the audience and his "fellow gladiators" on stage, Larry Podmore spoke briefly of his business experience in England and Malaya, alluded to his service as a Royal Marine and told of his career as a teacher in Toronto prior to his retirement in 1979.

While any board entrusted to spend money can expect little praise and a lot of criticism, the outgoing members, chairman Paul Wilson and former chairperson Bonnie Lee Berry, deserved praise for their work, he said.

As a teacher he said he was quite aware of the sharp rise in the cost of education since the late 1950's when the west endeavoured to catch up to the Russians after the launching of the first satellite. But in spite of this frenzied educational activity, "Students are no better off than before," he commented.

"As the experimental age becomes more coherent, the board of education must ensure that students are equipped with basic knowledge and skills," he said.

While not opposed to change or the influx of technical equipment, he promised to strive for a balance between the needs of students and the community's ability to pay for education costs.

Increased interest

Incumbent trustee Len Salvatori began his address by saying he was pleased to see the high level of interest in the board as shown by the large number of candidates. He went on to detail many of the accomplishments of the board over the past term since Bill 82 came into effect.

He pointed out that while the province has made the programs under the bill mandatory, the funding has to come from local taxpayers, an indication of a trend to reduced provincial funding of education.

He noted that in 1969, the budget of the Haliburton County Board of Education was 1.9 million dollars with 45% covered by provincial grants. In 1985 the province only pays 28% of the budget which has risen to 8.5 million dollars.

Noting the board will be discussing local funding with the Ministry of Education in the near future, Salvatori said he wants to be involved in those discussions. He concluded by stating he has enjoyed his work as trustee and if elected, will continue to do as well as he can.

In seeking her first term as a trustee, Joan Sawyer cited as her qualifications her past experience assisting previous candidates in their campaigns, her work in the health care field and, as mother of a student in high school, an understanding of the needs of students.

She complimented the outgoing board for their many accomplishments and said she wanted to be a part of the next board to ensure students acquire a comprehensive education which she described as the most important task of youth.

Her organizational skills, her in-depth knowledge of the community and her ability to devote time to the decision making process make her an ideal candidate for the post of trustee, she concluded.

Nancy Stinson, an incumbent trustee and the mother of three school age children, spoke of her involvement in the community through the Girl Guides, Brownies and Figure Skating Club and her past work on the board. During the past term she has served on the Transportation, Salary, Special

Trustees, councillors seek support

Program, Secondary School Liason and countless other small committees, she said.

While she is committed to ensuring students receive the highest quality of education available, she stressed the need for wise use of tax dollars. "As a parent I am aware of the type of education students get, and as a taxpayer, aware of the costs," she said, noting, "Quality costs money."

While the provincial government has implemented Bill 82, "It didn't provide adequate funding," she commented and concluded by stating she hoped the proposed meeting between the board and the Ministry would produce positive results.

Wayne "Woody" Wood, the final candidate for the board to speak, told the audience he is the owner of Ashburnham Meat Market and retired from the Armed Forces.

During his military career he was a teacher at Base Borden. He is involved in Haliburton Minor Hockey and the newly formed Army Cadet Corp.

While he professed to have no preconceived ideas of the duties and responsibilities of the board, he promised to serve faithfully, honestly and to the best of his abilities and to be available to listen to ratepayers' concerns at all times.

Councillors

Miles Roberts who is seeking election as councillor in Ward 2, was the first of the council hopefuls to speak.

As a businessman whose company is located outside the county, Roberts said he was confident in his ability to participate in council decisions without having to be concerned about a conflict of interest.

He promised to be a watchdog over tax dollars to ensure that costs are controlled and to scrutinize hiring practices to ensure fairness and ethics in hiring qualified persons to work for the municipality. He said he could give direction to the concerns of ratepayers and did not value his own opinion so highly that he would not seek input from the public.

While conceding that government work programs benefit the community in the short term, he said councils should work in the direction of permanent jobs to reduce unemployment. Studies should be carried out by the municipality on light industry that is compatible with the environment and lobbyists should then be retained to attract industry to Haliburton, he said.

Other communities the size of Haliburton have lobbied for industry and have subsequently grown, he commented.

However, he criticized the LEAD program which will provide space for four small businesses in the village of Haliburton as being harmful to private enterprise. "We should not interfere in the free market," he concluded.

Speaking next was Roberts' opponent for the Ward two council seat, the incumbent John Parish.

"I have been here since 1952 when I was born and I plan on staying here," Parish began. To ensure that he and other young people can remain in their home community, Haliburton needs lots of industry, he commented.

During his term on council there have been a number of programs of government assistance to provide jobs, including the LEAD program, Parish said. He pointed out the new building, which will be constructed with federal funds next summer, will provide space for four new industries. "Council's theory is that we need a breeder factory for industries in our area...this will allow young people who cannot afford commercial rates to start new projects...once they get off the ground hopefully they will build a new factory in our industrial park," he commented.

During the past term Parish said he has served on the Recreation Committee, Land Committee and Museum Board in addition to other smaller committees adding he wants to continue to serve the community and endeavour to attract new industry.

Parish was acclaimed in the last election and is the only councillor facing a challenge in the November 12 election.

Dorothy Baker (Ward 1) Lloyd Leadbeater (Ward 3) Sid Cooper (Ward 4), who served as deputy reeve for part of the past term and Glen Hodgson (Ward 5) have all been acclaimed. The acclaimed councillors were present at the meeting and in brief speeches thanked their constituents for their support.

Deputy reeve

Bob Nichol was the first of three candidates for the position of Deputy Reeve to address the meeting.

A desire to keep Haliburton a friendly and pleasant place for families was one reason why he chose to seek office he said. He also expressed concerns over the universality of social welfare programs arguing those in need often do not get assistance while many who do not require help are receiving assistance.

As well, he said he is concerned about the cost of caring for older people that must be provided by the shrinking numbers of young people.

Nichol promised to work with ratepayers, to help council keep a high profile and to provide the strength of youth, adding he wanted to break with tradition by providing action, not just talk.

Bill Davis began his address by crediting the leadership of Reeve Murray Fearrey and the strong tax base of the municipality for the progress in the community, but cautioned against overestimating priorities, particularly because of rising education costs in the face of declining subsidies.

Noting that half of council's business is concerned with land use, such as planning and zoning, Davis pointed out he has served on the Dysart et al Planning Board for three terms and wants to continue to make sound decisions.

The deputy reeve must be able to support his reeve at county council, must be able to work with that council and other government agencies and must have the potential to eventually lead council, Davis commented.

He concluded by saying his experience on the Planning Board, his desire to work with council and his willingness to be available to his constituents at all times made him the choice for the position.

Harold Bannon began his address by assuring his audience he had been given a clean bill of health and was younger than Ronald Reagan.

Bannon stepped down from the post of deputy reeve in 1982 for health reasons.

He told his audience he could provide responsible representation and had the ability to work with and listen to council, county council and the provincial government. His main concerns he said were a need for more chronic care beds, renewed discussion over the building of an airport in the municipality and a comprehensive road paving program.

Describing himself as someone who has always supported the community both on council and in private business, Bannon asked for support to continue his work in Haliburton.

Before assuming his role as master of ceremonies, Reeve Murray Fearrey spoke briefly on the efforts of the past council and their future endeavours. He paid tribute to the municipal government for keeping the increase in the levy to less than two percent a year while in office. "We have doubled the input of business that goes through the municipal office even though we have less staff than when I first became reeve in 1974," he commented. He warned, however, that this upcoming term will be difficult and changes will be necessary.

Addressing criticisms of the LEAD program, Fearrey said the opinions were valid, but noted council has discussed the concerns and "Cleared the air" on the matter. "The reason we took advantage of the LEAD program is because other rural communities are involved in it," he said.

The 20 jobs which will be created through the program would not have gone to existing businesses and will greatly benefit the community. "We are not here to interfere with private enterprise, but we are here to promote the community and create jobs," he commented.

He concluded his remarks by stressing the importance of bringing people to the community to create jobs, provided the light industry does not affect the environment.

Following a fifteen minute intermission, the candidates were questioned on a variety of issues by the ratepayers.

Predictably the main concern expressed was the high cost of education and the burden it causes to local taxpayers. Other issues included an apparent lack of communication between the board and the public, hiring practices in local schools, a lack of written dress code at the senior elementary school, the awarding of tenders by the county roads committee and the suggestion that a three year term in office is discouraging many people from making a commitment to public office.

Reeve Fearrey said the term is under review by the provincial government with a possibility that the term of office will be reduced to two years in rural municipalities.

Following the wide ranging discussion, Reeve Fearrey reminded the ratepayers, "Make sure you get out and vote. That is what it is all about. And make sure your neighbours do the same."

Theatre group ready with melodrama

The Highlands Little Theatre group is preparing for its autumn presentation, "Dark Deeds at Swan's Place, or Never Trust a Tattooed Sailor". The actors take this light-hearted melodrama to the stage November 14, 15 and 16 at the HHSS auditorium.

A press release from the theatre group describes the play this way:

"A tongue-in-cheek, uproarious 'melly-drammer' with no redeeming social value whatsoever. Escapist entertainment with enough seedy jokes to give chestnuts a bad name. Loaded with laughs and a comic delight for both cast and audience."

"Montague Leech, the villain, and his henchwoman, Carlotta Castanet (the She-Wolf of Monterey), make a tidy profit shanghaiing young lads to ships that sail from California to the China Seas. They operate from a disreputable tavern."

"Alas, the tavern belongs to a grizzled prospector. When he dies the tavern is willed to his only heir, Bertha Birthright, an orphan. She plans to make the place her 'home'. She is also a semi-skilled seamstress. Montague must get rid of the damsel. Enter Jack Swan, an English sailor, with a love for the theatre. He offers Bertha his 'protection' and the hilarity goes into high gear!"

"Soldiers, widows, society matrons, temperance crusaders, cowboys, mysterious figures, crusty sea captains collide to make the mirth even merrier. To complicate matters gold has been discovered at Sutter's Mill and the California gold rush is on."

"All is resolved in a final tableau that leaves our hero empty handed as far as Bertha is concerned, but determined to bring "drammer" to the West."

Tickets: Advance, Adults $4.00 Students and Seniors $3.00; At door, Adults $5.00 Students and Seniors $4.00. Tickets available from: All Theatre Group Members, Paulette's, Haliburton, T.D. Bank, Minden, The Store-room, Minden.

Corinne retires after 39 years in white

Fellow workers, former classmates and ambulance drivers joined together Saturday evening at the Fireside Restaurant in Minden to pay tribute to Corinne Fleming for the thirty-nine years of service she has given to nursing in Minden and area.

Corinne, (nee Macarthur) commenced her nursing career in 1943 at the Ross Memorial in Lindsay. Following graduation in June 1946 she became part of the nursing team at the Red Cross Hospital in Haliburton.

After the opening of the hospital in Minden in 1955, Corinne transferred there in the fall. She continued to practice her profession at Minden Hospital until October of 1985.

Her three former classmates, Mrs. Robson, Ethel Morrison and Mary

Dwyer were very happy to be able to attend the festivities honouring their colleague.

Many tributes were made on Saturday evening, including two letters, one from Dr. Griffiths, a former Minden practitioner and one from Miss Singer who was the Director of Red Cross Outpost Nursing when Corinne began her career.

The evening was an enjoyable one for those taking part and many stories honouring (and teasing) Corinne were told.

The celebration culminated with the presentation of a custom-made gold necklace bearing a Florence Nightingale lamp inside a heart. A fitting tribute to a warm, dedicated and very popular nurse.

Enjoy your retirement Corinne, you have earned it.

Mastitis hurts milk production - Ag report

Mastitis has been with us since the first calf was born, and it will likely be around until the last cow dries up. Traditionally farmers have seen mastitis and have treated their cows for it, and the cost of treatment plus the milk that was thrown out during the treatment was all of the cost they saw.

However, mastitis exists in a subclinical form in a great many cows, and while it cannot be seen, it is costing many dollars in lost production. It has been established that 70% of the cost of mastitis is from milk production loss.

For very little cost, dairy-men using DHIC services, can have a Somatic Cell Count (SCC) taken on each cow in the herd every month. These cows are given a number (or index) which represents the number of leucocytes found in the milk each month. By keeping track of the cell count from month to month, a producer can see which cows will need treatment during the dry period, or which are nearing a danger point of having clinical or visible mastitis.

Studies have shown that every time the number of leucocytes doubles, the cow will produce about 200 kg. or litres less milk. Each change in SCC Index represents a doubling of the number of cells found. Therefore, a change in index from 2 to 3 represents a further loss of 200 kg. per lactation, from 2 to 4 represents 400 kgs. of milk lost and so on.

So it's easy to see how mastitis can cost you money. Each 200 litres of milk lost represents a loss of about have been profit since it comes off the top end.

Controlling mastitis may be one of the keys to greater profitability in the dairy business today. At any rate, it's worth taking a look at.

Information about mastitis prevention and control is available at the Lindsay Agricultural Office.

National 4-H week highlights new image

John Wise, Federal Minister of Agriculture, has proclaimed November 4 - 10 as National 4-H Week. A series of public service announcements will focus public attention on the 4-H program.

The 4-H program, which was adopted in Ontario in 1952, has evolved from an agriculture-and-homemaking centred youth club into a sophisticated organization promoting responsible citizenship, leadership, social awareness and independence through achievement in skill-development projects. The National 4-H Week highlights the unique opportunity which 4-H provides in helping young people in our communities develop their potential as responsible citizens.

Spotlight activities planned to celebrate the week are the National 4-H

Members Conference with its theme "Forging Our Future" and National 4-H Leader's Conference with its theme "Creative Leadership - Today's Challenge". Both of these conferences will be held at the Royal York Hotel, Toronto. Seven members and five leaders from each province have been selected to attend.

Grant becomes loan for resort

The provincial contribution announced by the previous government to Deerpark Inn, considered unacceptable by the Liberal government, will now be a fully repayable loan, instead of part grant and part loan, Ontario Minister of Tourism and Recreation, John Eakins announced in the house Monday.

A review was initiated by the government of the $10-million agreement between the Ontario and federal governments and Deerpark Resorts Ltd., for expansion of the Deerpark Inn in Muskoka.

As a consequence, the Ministry of Tourism and Recreation and the Ontario Development Corporation were authorized by the Cabinet to negotiate with the other parties to seek a resolution which better reflected the interests of the taxpayers of Ontario.

"I am now pleased to report that a revised agreement, satisfactory to all parties has been signed. The principal change is that the entire $5-million Provincial contribution will now be a fully repayable loan, with no grant. The $5-million federal contribution will also be subject to the same condition," Eakins said.

"I can also confirm that the recreation and sport facilities involved in this expansion will be available for use by members of the general public," he said.

"In signing the revised agreement the government was mindful of the considerable economic benefits to the local economy. The expansion will create more than 350 permanent jobs and more than 1,000 'construction years' of work will also be created," Eakins said.

"I also wish to emphasise the importance of the Canada - Ontario Subsidiary Agreement for Tourism Development and we wish to continue, in partnership with the Government of Canada, to play our part in its implementation," Eakins added.

Fitness centre plans continue

The fitness centre, planned for the proposed LEAD building in Minden's core, will not be a part of the new structure. One of the organizers of the venture, Patti Prentice, announced this week that she and her partner, Sharon Poldas, have decided to open a fitness studio in the new Moyne's Furniture mall at the corner of Highway 35 and Main Street.

Mrs. Prentice said there were two reasons for the relocation. She said the delay in the construction of the LEAD building was creating problems for the partners. She said they wanted to get the business underway as soon as possible, and, rather than wait until next year, they would be opening on a smaller scale in the new location.

She also noted that a meeting with a fitness designer and management consultant in Toronto convinced them that their initial plans for the LEAD structure were too ambitious for the size of the community. They were told that to cover their costs they would have to charge fees which they felt were too high.

The partners feel they will be able to prepare an attractive program for men and women of all ages at the new facility and plan to include yoga, karate and ballet to the exercise programs being offered.

As ever
In spite of its flaws.
Broadway and Times Square,

The best restaurants in the world

Then on to Chicago, Chicago

Finally Denver, Colorado
Looking down at thirty-three thousand feet

Three new members join staff at Lindsay Ag office

by Carm Hamilton

During the past month, three new people have joined the staff at the Lindsay Agricultural Office. Mary Ann Yaromich is Rural Organizations Specialist, Home Economics, Rob Black is the Rural Organizations Specialist, Agriculture, and Ken Mullen is the Agricultural Engineer.

Mary Ann Yaromich was raised on a large dairy and cash crop farm in the Niagara Region, and graduated with her degree in Home Economics from the University of Guelph in 1983 majoring in Applied Human Nutrition. Since then Mary Ann has served as Rural Organizations Specialist, on special assignments in the counties of Wellington, York-Durham West, and Huron.

Mary Ann will be working from the Lindsay office for the coming year while Mrs. Christine Duke-low is the Acting Regional Manager for the Rural Organizations and Services Branch of the Ministry. Christine is continuing to work from the Lindsay office but has no direct county responsibilities with her new position.

Rob Black was raised on a beef farm in the Fergus area of Wellington County. He has been a very active 4-H and Junior Farmer member for a number of years. Rob graduated from the University of Guelph, majoring in Agricultural Business last spring. He has worked for the Ministry for several summers, including one year as the provincial supervisor for the Agricrew program. This past summer, he served as summer assistant in the provincial office, responsible for Regional 4-H conferences and other leadership training programs. Rob was one of four Junior Farmers who won the ministry's travelling scholarship to the United Kingdom in 1984.

Both Rob and Mary Ann will be serving the people in Victoria, Peterborough and Haliburton counties. Rob's position is an additional position in the area, created to provide more adequate service to the expanding number of participants in rural organizations in these counties.

Ken Mullen transferred to Lindsay as agricultural engineer recently. He served in this capacity for several years in the Markdale office and before that in the Kingston office. Ken is a native of Peterborough County. Ken replaces Dave Trudell in this office - Dave is now the agricultural engineer for Grey County.

These appointments should complete the staff changes which started last spring when several former staff members accepted new challenges in other areas of the province, with the Ministry of Agriculture and Food.

Ontario brucellosis free

A recent announcement by the Honourable John Wise in Ottawa declaring Ontario as a brucellosis free area is a major accomplishment. This means the virtual eradication of this serious disease from the domestic cattle herd right across Canada. Ontario was the last province to be granted this status by the federal government.

This announcement will be of special interest to cattle producers in Victoria County, since it is less than ten years ago that this area was one of the major areas in Canada infected with brucellosis. It is thanks to the co-operation of farmers and veterinarians with the federal Health of Animals staff that has made this achievement possible.

Brucellosis is a contagious disease that causes abortion and production losses in cattle, and can also cause undulant fever in humans. Canada now joins the Scandinavian countries and Switzerland as countries which have eradicated brucellosis from the cattle populations.

Cattle will now be able to move freely throughout Canada, and elimination of the disease should also aid the entry of Canadian cattle into the U.S. market.

Farm management analysis

The Ontario Farm Management Analysis Project Report for 1984 is now available from county agricultural offices. This year's report contains a summary of financial and physical information from over 650 farms across Ontario, and for eight different major farm enterprises.

The information in the report comes from the enterprise analysis project in which farmers across the province voluntarily shared financial and production information on their farm for the past year with the project organizers. This is the 39th year this project has been carried out by the Ontario Agricultural College and the Ontario

Ministry of Agriculture and Food.

Any farmer interested in comparing his farm records with averages from farmers with similar enterprises, is encouraged to obtain a copy of this report.

Celebrations for Anglican Church

This is a special month for the parishioners of St. Paul's Anglican Church in Minden. During November they will be holding a number of celebrations to commemorate the opening of their newly constructed parish hall.

Foremost among the special events is a service of dedication planned for Sunday, November 10. Archbishop L. Garnsworthy will be in attendance to officiate at the special service.

Also taking part in the service will be Archdeacon McKean, a former diocesan missions director. Following the service there will be pot luck luncheon in the new hall.

It is expected that parishioners from St. Peter's and St. Stephens churches will wish to take part in this special celebration, so services at these churches have been cancelled for that Sunday.

The church will also be holding its annual Thanksgiving Dinner Tuesday, November 19. It's a chance for the public to see the new hall and enjoy a traditionally prepared turkey supper.
